FULL BIO

Chris Carrillo is the CEO of NTREIS, overseeing 50,000+ MLS subscribers across 13 Realtor Associations in Texas and Louisiana. Prior to NTREIS, he spent more than 14 years as CEO of Metro MLS in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, the state's largest MLS, and before that led CRIS MLS in Akron, Ohio.

An active volunteer leader in MLS governance for more than two decades, Chris currently serves as a Director on the Council of MLS (CMLS) Board and is part of the COVE Group. He is a past CMLS Chairman (2019) and served on the CMLS Board of Directors from 2014 to 2020. He also previously served as a Director for the Real Estate Standards Organization (RESO) from 2017 to 2022, and brings a deep bench of NAR volunteer experience, including two consecutive terms as Chair of NAR's MLS Standards Work Group (2019-2021).

Chris co-founded MLS Aligned, a coalition of forward-thinking MLSs building industry-leading technology for more than 120,000 MLS subscribers nationwide, recognized as first runner-up in the 2019 Inman Innovator Awards. He also partnered with ARMLS CEO Matt Consalvo to launch MARKT, the first non-contiguous joint venture between MLSs.

Chris holds the CMLX3 designation, the highest distinction an MLS executive can achieve, and was named the 2019 CMLS Peter Shuttleworth MLS Executive of the Year. He has been named to the Swanepoel Power 200, T3 Sixty's annual ranking of the most powerful leaders in North American residential real estate, multiple times, most recently at #166 in the 2026 list, and was recognized on Inman's MLS Reinvented list (2024) and RISMedia's Influencers list.

A veteran of the U.S. Army Military Police Corps, Chris earned his B.S.Ed. from Northern Illinois University.
